

SANDI DAWSON started her work as an Assistant Federal Defender in a Capital Habeas Unit. She has also worked on non-capital habeas and direct appeals. She is presently a trial attorney at the Federal Defenders for the Middle

District of Alabama, where she started a wellness committee to address the sustainability and well-being of all staff members. Before law school, Sandi worked as a public high school teacher.

While earning her Juris Doctor, she also completed a Master of Dispute Resolution. Most recently, Sandi completed a two-year mindfulness meditation teacher certification program.